Sunday Dec 31st/ Day 2 06 Hutchinson, Ks.
Woke up to snow, the edge of the 2nd major storm from Western Ks. The experience in Reno Cty Ks [illegible] detention was an experience not to be relived. There was an obvious separation of the races. Black, Mexican, Caucasion - somewhat enabled by placement of individuals within 1 of 3 pods. Individual stories of inmates were varied from DUI, drug related offenses + domestic violence. Terms ranged from 5 days to 6 months. Food was at the best poor. I'm now home (thank god) with mom. I spoke with Cathy, Tom + Linda yesterday.

mom + I watched father Corapi on EWTN and he spoke of how Catholic's should read the Bible (God spoke to us through his son 'the Word' which is imparted by the Spirit. I miss Cathy and home in Ohio, but am happy to be here with mom

Sadam was hung in Iraq on Sat. morning Iraq time

This year has been an awakeing in many ways. I need to step back into life and the world of relationships with other people, I need to regain a sense of confidence in myself + my skills. I have the time available to renew this commitment and determine my path into the future but I must open the door. I have the support of friends and family and I know that I have the prayers + watchful eyes of Sara with me. For as the Greeks said + JFK quoted "Happiness is the pursuit of excellance with all your talents". Fear of failure must be avoided by prior acceptance of goals. I want to continue this effort at least for the next 90+ days while reviewing this commitment to my future. Is the distinction between the Jewish faith and Christianity only the acceptance of Christ? It took some soap, but I got my wedding ring back on. Robert McNamara once said "In any crisis you will never know what you need to know and therefore you should proceed cautiously", in reference to the Cuban missel crisis. I hope that in the coming year I can reclaim the life that has been on hold for the last, now almost 4 years. Only time will tell. Its now 2007.

Monday Jan 1st / Day 3 07 Hutchinson, Ks.

The realization of how much I miss Cathy is becoming each day more apparent. The economic cost, burnt bridges, strained family + friends relationships are but just some of the evident results of my making. But these are the negotives of my past and I need to strive to dwell on the positives and should try to remember and list those so as to built more confidence in myself.

I want to mention how much the geese flying over to the NW every moving and to the SW in the evening reminds me of the eastern shore. They are probably migrating from Cheny lake to Queriva, although I don't know for sure. But I can tell that they number in the thousands, by the numerous V formations and the ever present 'Onker' sound they make as they fly over.

It might be something I can do, would be to share my experience with those with less advantoges in life so as to give them the courage to change their lives, especially children.

Is 'delinguency' nothing more than a code word for the root problem of poverty. I fixed pork chops + kraut dinner tonight.

Some of my successes include, the Diebolt Book, the Masters Degree in Planning, making it to D.C., participating in the Sky Rydeus, 26 years of marriage, genealogy research + collection to name a few. I have to try and make more of these, but also add to the list

The geese 'onkers' come by every moring as if to say 'hello' to the new day & every evening to say 'all is well'. I have to try to delineate my random thoughts in this journal effort better so as to make it more apparent how I got here, but more so to determine where I'm going.

The Proud Tower

Barbara Tuchman

It seems, (as exhibited by Prime Minister Salisbury, Lord Robert Cecil) that the turn of the century conservative mind of England saw little need for mass public participation in government, as they felt that by right of heredity they were destined to rule, + thus preserve the status quo. "In their luxurious + lavish world, self indulgence was the natural law" Barbara Tuchman the Tower p28 That attitude was in conflict with that of the U.S., where virtue was seen in lowly birth and the self made individual. There though responsability came as a byproduct of experience. Both of these systems have on occassion led to nepotism. It does seem however more likly that the system based on the self made individual may at times be more susceptible to greed.

Can conversation be casual, yet still an art wherein competence can bestow prestige?

Some references speculate that the class consiousness of the extremely wealthly such as the patricians of England or the Newport Society in America may have brought on the anarchist trend of the early twentieth century.

Alexander Herzen wrote "an anarchist is like Columbus without America".

Proudhon asked "What is Poverty?", he answered "Poverty is theft." But, the anarchists, despite very (active) local groups and meetings never really organized into a cohesive national party or group in either the U.S. or Europe. They were however responsible for numerous acts of terrorism + bombings which killed + mamed many individuals. As a group they sought the overthrow of captolism. Otherwise the Anarchists wanted revolution, but revolution demands organization, discipline + authority; Anarchism disallows them. During this period in history (turn of the century 19-20), a hatred for organized society seethed within the lower classes

The tragedy of mankind is that it can creat the blueprint of goodness, but only rarely is it able to complete the structure.

Can the capacity for mischief be unfettered by doctrine? What was truth + what people persuaded themselves was truth can become hopelessly blurred.

For individuals who wish to remain in office, the nature of justice is often not as clear as it is to those on the outside

Wednesday January 17, day 20, 07, Hutchinson KS.

"Justice does not come down from heaven, it must be conquered" Reinach in 'The Proud Tower', p187 Barbara Tuchman.

"As soon as the rights of one individual are violated, the rights of everyone are jeopardized", Clemenceau, p189, Proud Tower
"The true patriots are those who fight to obtain justice + to liberate from the yoke of ... infallibility".

"The monstrous contradiction of the pre-World War I era was that while the masses yearned for peace and the governments insisted war must be avoided, all countries were massing armaments to prepare for war".

Friday January 19, day 22, 07 Hutchinson, Ks.

The assumption of power by the Liberals over the Tories in 1905/06 England and the elevation of Sir Henry Campbel Bannerman (C.B.) to Prime Minister mirrors the assumptio of power by the Democrats over the Republicans in 2006 /07 and elevation of Nancy Pilosi as Speaker, in terms of their respective attitudes towards armaments and the military. Proud Tower p 275/76, Barbara Tuchman.

"Illness and apathy, as much as ill health are povertys products."

It seems that the era of pre World War I had given many in Europe a sense or illusion of security. They did not seem to realize the precipice they were standing on. Somehow, it seems that then as well as now, humanity curiously refuses to act in its own best interest.

Whereever you are, there you are, make a difference.

As the world slipped towards WWI, the tendancy of the age was to clothe reality in sentimental garments.

I need to remove the cloak of grief from around my shoulders re. Sava. How can I feel better about myself - that is what I need! Whenever you plant a seed, and nuture it, something good will happen. Predetermined plans often become inflexable in the face of changing events

Once divinity of doctrine has been questioned, there is no return to perfect faith.

The lack of communication between the British General French, the French General Joffre + the Albert Belgian King Alfred during Aug 1914 led to a great retreat from the immediate Meuse front and thereby allowed early German success in that early period of WWI. It seems at the start of the war both Britan + France, despite gurantees of neutrality, left Belgium to fend for itself. The lack of communiation between the French and British continued during the retreat of French 5th Army and the British from the Mons canal area.

Let not my life be ruined by worry, fear, and selfisness.

Thursday Febuary 1 day 34, 07 Hutchinson, KS.

It seems that the performance of Joffre for the French and French for the British in Aug 1914, did little to enoble the reputation of either the French or the British armies against the Germans. In the face of this General von Klucks 1st German army outpaced his supply and left the French 6th + the British on his right flank guarding Paris as he approached and crossed the Marne river. The battle of the Marne determined that the war would go on. It also marked the destruction of the Schlieffen plan.

Sr. Jane Marie dies Jan. 27 at 97

GREAT BEND — Sister Jane Marie McCoy, 97, died Saturday, Jan. 27, in the Dominican Sisters' convent infirmary.

Born Dec. 4, 1909, in Muskogee, Okla., as Margaret Ann McCoy, Sister Jane Marie was the daughter of the late William and Ollie Ann Logsdon McCoy. She entered the Dominican Sisters' Community July 25, 1927, and pronounced her first vows Aug. 13, 1930. She celebrated 75 years of religious profession in 2005.

Sister Jane Marie had a teaching career of 42 years, from 1929 to 1971. She taught at various times in all the grades from 1 - 8 in 15 different parochial schools in Kansas and Oklahoma, and was principal of seven different schools during that time.

After retiring from teaching, she was Chancery secretary in Lincoln, Neb.; a financial and secretarial assistant in several positions at the motherhouse in Great Bend; a member of the local convent coordinating team; and lastly, stateside treasurer of the Dominican Sisters' Mission in Nigeria. She had been in the convent infirmary since 2006.

Sister Jane Marie has no surviving brothers or sisters.

Services were at the Dominican Chapel Tuesday, Jan. 30.

Memorials in honor of Sister Jane Marie may be sent to: Dominican Sisters Ministry Fund, Office of Mission and Ministry, 3600 Broadway, Great Bend, KS 67530-3692.

The British attitude toward breaking up the Ottoman empire in early 1915 seems a precursor to the present day middle and near east troubles. A sense of moral superiority.

By mid 1915, the warfare on the western Front and at Gallipoli had turned into stalemate. In May 1915,
* Churchill still urged the possobility of a victory in Gallipoli (First World War, p 210-211) On Nov 11th, he was excluded from a gov. council that recommended speedy evacatuion. He resigned from the gov't, went to the western front with the rank of Lt. Col. to serve as a batallion commander. (p.211)

Lawrence would squirt the milk so that the farm cats could always catch it in their mouths.

The British bear some significant responsibility for the middle east situation by the Balfour declaration, while at the same time having cast a cynical attitude towards the Arab search for independance via Sherif Hussein's request of 14 Jul 1915 (see First world war p 214) re. Arab Unity in the area, that did not include Palestine.

* Churchill served on the western front for at least six months. At least part of this time was near the village of Ploegsteert in Belgium south of Ypres near the border with France. On Jan 29, 1916, the first tank began its British trials. Churchill had previously encouraged its inventors + technical experts + when the War office blew cold on the effort, he had provided funds from his own Admiralty office to start testing. ROBERT E. LEE

- The General from Virginia

- College President

Try to imagine the tough decisions the founders of our country had to make. The men and women in colonial America were loyal subjects of the king of England. But they decided to make their lives better by ending that relationship. The people we call American patriots – George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin – were actually traitors to the throne.

Eighty years later, Colonel Robert E. Lee of Virginia had to make a similar difficult decision. In the spring of 1861, our country was falling apart as Southern states seceded (withdrew) from the Union. Virginia was one of those states. The new president, Abraham Lincoln, pledged to keep the country united, even using military force if necessary. To lead the troops, he turned to Colonel Lee, considered by many of his peers to be the "greatest soldier alive."

Uncertainty tormented Lee. What should he do? Be a loyal American and lead the Union army, or be loyal to family, friends, and Virginia and take up arms in support of his state? Lee decided to stand with his beloved Virginia. Eventually, he would command Confederate troops in the Civil War. His men would fight bravely, but the Union would prevail. After four years of conflict, Lee would surrender. So why should you learn more about Robert E. Lee? Because he had courage and integrity.

Lee was a complex man with strong beliefs, who had to be true to those beliefs. Choosing Virginia over the Union was not the only painful decision he had to make. Later on, when the Confederate army was suffering major defeat, Lee was under a lot of pressure to keep on fighting, to go underground if he had to. But Lee was convinced that to continue the war was pointless. As hard as it was, he had to stand by what he believed was best for his troops and the Confederacy. Surrender was hard to swallow, but sending more troops to die in battle was unthinkable.

Explore!

Americans young and old are fascinated by the Civil War. Although it took place more than 130 years ago, many people talk about it, read about it, visit its battlefields and museums, and even reenact it. Check with your local historical society to see if there is a Civil War reenactment group in your area. You may want to attend one of their events or even join.

To get you started in learning about the many interesting people involved in that great struggle, watch Ken Burn's first-rate, award-winning video series called The Civil War. All ten episodes are tremendous. Then, start reading. Choose biographies, historical fiction, novels, picture books, and magazines. Yes, there are even monthly magazines devoted to coverage of the Civil War.

Here are a few books to look for that will plunge you into the midst of the war between the states:

The Tamarack Tree by Patricia Clapp (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard, 1986)

The Borning Room by Paul Fleischman (HarperCollins, 1991)

Across Five Aprils by Irene Hunt (Follett, 1964)

Voices from the Civil War by Milton Meltzer (HarperCollins, 1989)

The Boys' War by Jim Murphy (Clarion, 1990)

Shades of Grey by Carolyn Reeder (Macmillan, 1989)

Red Cap by G. Clifton Wisler (Lodestar, 1991)

However, the vindictative attitude of France + Briton, the demand for reparations, and the failure of the U.S. to join the League of Nations dimed the light from that lamp. The mistrust engendered in the common people of Germany thus left open the door for the rise of dictatorships and the rise of Hitler.

Central Kansas Medical Center and the Dominican Sisters Convent welcomes Sister Diane Traffas back to Great Bend. Traffas began her association with Central Kansas Medical Center more than 20 years ago as its first mission-effectiveness coordinator.

She left Great Bend in 1993 to educate others about mission-based health care and was employed by Catholic Health Corporation, one of the predecessors to Catholic Health Initiatives, the parent organization of Central Kansas Medical Center. In 1995, Traffas was named Christian Health Initiative's vice president of mission integration.

Traffas recently returned to Great Bend and is now a member of Central Kansas Medical Center's board of directors and the local Dominican Sisters Leadership Council. Her goal as board member is to encourage the mission-integration efforts of others into all aspects of health-care delivery. In her Dominican leadership role, Traffas engages with four other sisters in community leadership to implement strategies for the future of religious life.

He gained the trust of the Indians and he was often upset by disregard for Indian rights, yet he negotiated treaties that gained millions of acres for the government.

p18 In 1811 W.H. led a force against a Shawnee settlement near Tippecanoe Creek. This brought him to the attention of Henry Clay. Clay then in his first term in Congress became W.H.'s most influential friend + supporter. Clay obtained a commission as brigadier general in the regular army for W.H., who ultimately gained full command of the army of the northwest in the war of 1812.

p18 After the war W.H. returned to his farm North Bend, near Cincinnati, Oh. He then served one term in the Ohio Legislature and one, in the U.S. House. In 1825, he was elected to the U.S. Senate. In 1828, with Clay's help, he was appt minister to Columbia by Pres. Adams.

p19 J. Tyler (J.T.) was b. in 1790 in Charles City Co., VA. Tyler's father was prominent in the Am. Revolution + became a judge of the High Court of Admiralty + then Gov. of VA. RCI was an acquaintance of John Locke, the philospher. He acquired one lucrative administrative post after another In 1702 he became an agent for the proprietary of the Northern Neck, a position he once denounced. The Northern Neck consisted of all lands between the headwaters of the Potomac + the Rappahannock. His position entitled him to survey, lease and deed all these lands. By the time he relinquished his position in 1711, he had patented more than 300,000 acres, sometimes in his own name, but usually in the name of close relatives. By 1726, he became acting Governor, and he owned 47 plantations. With two different wives he had 15 children, 10 of whom lived to be adults.

Thomas Lewis (Virginia)

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Jump to: navigation, search

Thomas Lewis (April 27, 1718 – January 31, 1790) was an Irish-American pioneer, lawyer, and surveyor from early Virginia. He made major contributions to the settlement of western Virginia.

[edit] Early life

Lewis was born to John (1678-1762) and Margaret Lynn Lewis (1693-1773) in County Donegal, Ireland. His father came to Philadelphia in 1728, then brought his family including Thomas and his brothers Andrew and William over in 1730. The Lewis family moved west, following the Shenandoah River south into Virginia and finally settling near the headwaters of the south fork in what was then Spotsylvania County in the summer of 1732. John established the family farm, building a stone house for defense against the Indians.

In 1736 William Beverley, a wealthy planter and merchant from Essex County, Virginia was granted over 118,000 acres (478 km^2) by the Crown in what would become Augusta County, Virginia. This made John Lewis a squatter on Beverley's grant. Lewis corrected this in 1739 by purchasing 2,000 acres (8 km^2) from Beverley, along Lewis Creek, about a mile (2 km) east of what is now Staunton, Virginia. He named his home Bellefont.

Thomas was an ardent student as a young man, partly as a result of being very nearsighted. He learned surveying and later read law as well. As early as 1739 he began acquiring land grants of his own to the south and west of Beverley's Manor in what is today Rockingham and Bath Counties.

The Virginia burgesses had authorized Augusta County in 1738, but it was seven years before there was enough population to justify organizing the county. Thomas became one of the first County Judges (Comissioners) when the county was organized in 1745. Shortly afterward he undertook the first of several surveying trips. In 1746, Lewis and Peter Jefferson surveyed part of the boundaries of Lord Fairfax's 15,000,000 acre (61,000 km^2) land grant. Lewis kept a detailed journal of these trips, which still provides a view of much of Virginia before its development. In 1746 he laid out the first town plat of Staunton for William Beverley.

Thomas married Jane Stroher from Stafford County on January 26, 1749. Soon after they started their own family and moved south to what would later become Rockingham County. The couple built a plantation they called Lynwood near Dayton, Virginia. They also raised thirteen children, one of whom (Thomas Lewis, Jr.) would serve in the U.S. Congress. Lewis had held a number of local offices, and was Surveyor of Augusta county for many years. His father had served in the House of Burgesses. But the needs of a large and growing family and building his farm kept him from a larger role for many years. He was elected to the House of Burgesses in 1765 to represent Augusta County. In the early days of the American Revolution, a convention of Virginia counties replaced the Burgesses. Thomas attended in 1775 as a delegate for Augusta County. His brother Andrew was also there as a delegate for Botetourt County. When a new state government was created in 1776, Thomas was elected to the state's House of Delegates.

In 1778, Lewis journeyed to Pittsburgh with a group that negotiated a treaty with the Delaware Indians to gain their neutrality for the rest of the war. In 1779, he was one of the commissioners appointed to negotiate a dispute with Pennsylvania over each state's western borders. In 1788, he was a delegate for Rockingham County (which had been created from part of southern Augusta County in 1777) to the Virginia convention that ratified the U.S. Constitution.

By the time Lewis died in 1790, he was one of the largest property owners in the county. He died at Lynwood and is buried with Jane in the family burial ground there.

Terrill, James Barbour (1838-1864),
brigadier general. → Barbour was born Feb. 20, 1838 on a farm near Warm Springs, VA. An 1858 graduate of VMI, Terrill was practicing law in Warm Springs when war came. He entered service as Major of the 13th Virginia, a unit with which he was associated throughout his military career.

→ Terrill was in every battle in the East from First Manassas through Spotsylvania. As of May 15, 1863 he was the colonel of his regiment. Terrill led by example. One of his men called him "that unflinching, hard fighter". General Jubal Early observed that Terrill and his men were "never required to take a position, that they did not take it, nor to hold one that they did not hold it."

→ On May 31 1864, the Confederate Senate confirmed Terrill's promotion to brigadier general. Tragically the previous day, Terrill had been shot in the head + killed at Bethesda Church. He remained buried where he fell until his father secured Terrills body, took it home + placed it in the same grove with his brother William, a Union brigadier,

who had been slain at Perryville, Kentucky

→ James Terrill was one of those fighting colonels who repeatedly sustained the high reputation of the Army of Northern Virginia. An admirer wrote of the young commander:

"His clarion voice, encouraging his men, was frequently heard above the din of battle; and when asked by his friends (as he frequently was) how it was that he acted so fearlessly in times of action, his reply invariably was, 'I never think on such occassions of being killed".

p354 David Terrell already had a trading center in a log cabin on the site((New Lexington-Highland P.O)- now Highland) when New Lexington was laid out. He had come from KY in 1806. The cabin was on the banks of Lee Creek. In Sep 1816 when the town was laid out it was on Terrell land. They had earlier lived near Lexington Ky + thought the new town might be named New Lexington. David was a true pioneer + a great fox hunter. He became one of the most influential citizens in the county. His wife Mary Anthony was a close relative of Anthony Franklin who was appointed sheriff when Highland Co. was formed in 1805.
